FOURTH DAY OF THE THIRTY-SEC-OND ANNUAL EXHIBITIOY.

Commencement of the Races-Large Attendance at Park and Pavilion

-Speech of Colonel Irish. Yesterday was the most successful day the fair, both at the Park and Pavilion.

lights, made a most attractive scene. The music of the band was excellent, and the mass of people, all apparently joined in easy and independent promenade, viewing the exhibits of interest, or enjoying social chat and strolls, presented a picture pleasing to look upon. During the evening Colonel J. P. Irish delivered the usual opening address of welcome for the Society.

Some effort should be made to have K or L. Street lighted with gas or electricity between the Pavilion and Tenth street, as it is now dangerous to pedestrians at night on account of the great number of all kinds of vehicles driving rapidly about the streets.

A. Aitken, Sacramento, in the west wing, has a fine display of marble work, monuments, mantels, tablets, etc. Also some opening address of welcome for the Society, at the request of President Carr. This, and the cut flower exhibition, were special features of the evening.

isplays were as follows: Bell Conservatory Company, five pieces of the choicest flowers of the season, and arranged very artistically. The pieces consisted of a picnic review—floral table and chair, upon a flat floral base; a floral horseshoe, standing, with base about 3½ feet like the occident stake, for floral tables and tables stelletzia regina, tuberose, pinks, aspelbia aponicas, heliotrope, stephanotis, dahlias, ollyhocks, alamanda, smilax, etc. Frank Kunz—Five pieces, consisting of crown, with floral base, in all standing about four feet high; a broken wheel, the flowers used in their arrangement were roses, pinks, verbenas, abutilous, margarites, Japanese lilies, corn-flowers, forget-me-nots, maiden-hair fern, bachelor but-

Special Attractions in all Departments, He said it was customary for the President to deliver an opening address of welcome. He was no orator, had an impediment in his speech and had called to his aid an orator whom all would be pleased to hear. He then introduced the Hon. John P. Irish, of San Francisco. Mr. Irish said:

I am bidden by the President of this Association to declare the formal opening of this annual exhibition, and to utter the Directors' word of welcome to the thousands who are here and the thousands who are to come.

I am ordered by the President, as who will be appalled to know, to say some things that are not true, for he bids me say that the Presidency could have been conferred upon one worthier to exercise that authority which is created by the law. I refuse, for I know none worthier to exercise that authority which is created by the law. I refuse, for I know none worthier to hank who wrought in that war that was concurrent with the conquest of this soil, and preceded the treaty which gave us title, and since then has witnessed and promoted the begingings of those varied industries which ripen to night in the enchanting results which surround us.

Let me not forget another duty put upon me by the gallant President and Board of Directors, the pleasant office of thanking the lades whose good taste has so enlivened the exhibition within this Pavilion, and those who have come from their sunny California homes to make attractive that which without their presence lacks charms that nothing else can supply. A LIVING REFORM.

The Indianapolis Journal referring to the meck-eyed investigator who, by microscopic experiments claims to have discovered the immaterial part of man and brought the soul to view, should try his hand upon the present administration and see where civil-service reform comes in It is simple justice to say that the President is sincere in his civil-service reform protestations. But that he can make his convictions the policy of his party is the question. We are of the opinion that the party toe heavily handicaps Mr. Cleveland. The party as an organization is secretly opposed to the policy. Whatever it has conceded to it thus far has been merely apparent and in the nature of adroit ma neuver. That the party leaders ever approved the declaration of the President upon the question, no close observer now believes. There is within the party an element of the thoughtful order that stands by the President, but as a party, the Democracy does not propose to commit itself unreservedly to the doctrine. Within the Republican party there is an element not of great strength, but still of positive force, that believes the reform to be a snare, destructive of partisanship and opposed from the ground work up to the vitality of party organization. As a party, however, the Republican organization is committed. and sincerely, to the principle of the reform. It will adhere to it, and it must make it in the next campaign an aggres sive question, a living issue. By so doing it will gather to itself new strength. It will be enabled to array the Democracy against its head and draw recruits from the enemy. Whatever men may now think of the question they will awake to the truth presently that the reform has lost none of its vigor and is not to be ignored. Under that banner the party can recover to itself all the disaffected Republicans who have withdrawn themselves and secure the material support of an independent element

Liberal sums of money had been subscribed in support of the State Association at San Francisco, in the hope that those in charge of that Society would include the northern counties in their work, but up to the time of our organization not a line concerning northern California had been printed by that Society for publication. The work of advertising a country larger than the two great States of New York and Pennsylvania, with a varied soil, climate and resources, was a great one. The time of organization was in some respect unfavorable. We were in the midst of an excited and heated political canvas, which absorbed the attention of all classes, to the exclusion of all but the most pressing business duties. This condition of the public mind made it impossible to induce the people to perfect the local or county organizations till late in November. As soon as the Presidential context was decided the work was actively commenced.

On the list of December, nine months ago, the office of the Association was opened. We were then without funds, and had only the bare walls of a room. An arrangement was made whereby the furniture was put in here, without any money outlay on the part of the society. On the list of December next the furniture will become the property of the Association. They drifted down to the San Joaquin steamer landing, where he succeeded in getting her into the boat. She gasped once or twice, but showed no other sign of life. As soon as possible she was taken ashore, and efforts made to resuscitate her, but without avail. She was identified as Mrs. Lawson, a woman who frequently has been before the Police Court for drinking and disturbing the peace, but not latterly. The body was conveyed to the Coroner's, and Justice Post will hold an inquest to-day, in the absence of Coroner Clark. Soon afterwards there was a scream and a splash, and he feels positive Mrs. Lawson was thrown into the river. On the other hand neither Miller nor Sherman saw a man near the barges, and Miller thinks he would have seen any one who was there, as he turned out very quickly. It seems scarcely probable that a man contemplating murder by drowning would go upon one of the fish markets to commit it, when there were other places to which his victim could be enticed with less danger to himself, and it is more likely that Mrs. Lawson had been drinking, went on board the barge alone, without any definite, object, and fell into states that while he was th

GAMBLING MATTERS .- Officers Kent, Farrell, Riley and Scribner arrested yesterday morning Steve Maroney, William Hust and George Rogers for gaming, in conducting what the officers considered a percentage game of poker at the Bank Exchange. The parties arrested immediately gave bail. In he Police Court yesterday morning their cases, as well as the cases of the five men arrested previously for playing studhorse poker, were set for trial to-day, juries being demanded in each case. Harry Stover's name being at the head of the list, he will be the first called for trial. General A. L. Hart has been engaged as counsel for the efense. There was a report yesterday that and a force of officers was on hand to interfere at once, but there were no games commenced. It is quite generally conceded by the sports that their occupation is gone, or this fair, at least. The thing that bothers them now is a report that the authorities of Stockton and San Jose, at which places fairs are soon to be held, will feel compelled to follow Sacramento's example, and stop

OF THE NORTHERN CALIFORNIA IMMIGRATION ASSOCIATION.

A Very Successful Beginning-Annual Reports Submitted-List of Officers Re-elected.

The first annual meeting of the Board of Directors of the Northern California Immigration Association was held at the Secretary's office, in this city, yesterday, at 12 o'clock. The work of the Association during the past year was reviewed in an informal discussion, and the outlook for the fluttre. The Board proceeded to the election of officers for the ensuing year, which resulted in the re-election of the entire list, as follows: N. D. Rideout, President and Secretary, Mesers, which resulted in the re-election of the entire list, as follows: N. D. Rideout, Joseph Steffens and W. S. Green were elected the Executive Committee. Gentlemen of the Board of Directors: It becomes my duty at your first annual meeting to report our work for the past year. You will remember that when our organization was made last year, we were entering, for us in the northern part of the State, an untried field. Organized attempts had been made to induce immigration in other parts of the State, notably in the southern counties, which had proved eminently successful; but in the northern and central counties, during the whole American occupation, there had never been any united efforts to make known the resources for home seekers of the northern and middle part of the State.

making greater progress lacked making lacked making greater progress lacked making greater pr measurably lightened. In this branch of the Society's work the result was most satisfactory. Land was offered in great quantities, in lots to suit purchasers, at reasonable prices, on long time in part, and at low rates of interest. It is within bounds to say that never, since the Americans occupied the State, has so much land been offered to actual settlers as now. We could now find locations for many thousands of families could now find locations for many thousands of families.

Another branch of work perhaps more important than either of these was the making known the advantages offered nere to those desiring to leave Eastern regions and seek new homes. This involved the collection of data relating to the geography, topography, scenery, climate (including rainfall and temperature), and the economic importance of climate to settlers, the water system, forests, means of transportation, production, markets, schools, churches, printing presses, manufactures, trade, commerce and population. All this had to be gathered and so stated as to meet the inquiries of thousands of different people. It had to be stated truthfully and comprehensively, but so as to interest every class of readers. This was done and embodied in an illustrated pamphlet of 72 pages, with a lithographed map. Thirty thousand copies were published and distributed.

As evidence of the class of work done, it may be said that the pamphlet met with the universal commendation of the press and public. It was the unanimous testimony of those who had been engaged in immigration work, and had distributed many hundreds of thousands of copies of all kinds of pamphlets, that this was the plainest, most truthful and comprehensive so far published. Arrangements were made for their distribution in a 1 parts of the East. The agents selected for this work had uncommon facilities for its accomplishment. They had lists of names in every county in the Mississippi valley and on the Atlantic slope, embracing the most desirable classes as settlers.

At the time this work was in press, Mr. Hoag, the Railroad Immigration Commissioner at Chicago, wrote that he did not have a printed line relating to the northern part of the State which was of any practical use for distribution. He also wrote that he had always-been tully supplied with descriptions of the southern counties. In a single year he had distributed 150,000 pamphlets from that region. As a result of this condition of affairs, nearly Another branch of work perhaps more impor about southern California, northern California remaining unknown.

Soon after the distribution of the pamphlet description of our part of the State had commenced there was a complete change. People in all parts of the East wrote to Mr. Hoag, and to this office, about northern California. More han half of all the inquiries received were contenting this region. Letters were daily received announcing a determination to come singly, in anilies, or in colonies. As many as twenty solonies in different parts of the Eastern States have been formed with a view of settling here, it was intended on their part to arrange to come rere this year. Some of them will doubtless do to, but others will not be able to come until anbut others will not be able to come until an Berry on suspicion of grand larceny, in stealing a horse. It appears that Berry appeared at McGregor's ranch, below Washington, recently, with a horse, and it was believed by the proprietors of the ranch that he had stolen the animal. They sent word to the Sacramento police office, and officer Ash went down and made the arrest. The horse was supposed to be one stolen recently from Delap, of Putah creek, but it was learned yesterday that it was another animal, claimed by Henry Johnson, who lives near Davisville, and the latter has come over to recover it.

So, to ther swin hot be able to come unfavorable year for interestable the crisis of 1873 than the present one. The business depression at the East has prevented almost all sales of property out to great a sacrifice. Here we had a dry year and other unfavorable onditions—such as grasshoppers and low prices—all tending to grasshoppers and low prices—all tending to results realized have been very considerable. The animal, claimed by Henry Johnson, who lives near Davisville, and the latter has come over to recover it. northern counties—some into the foothills, and come into the valley counties. march farther westward. They are almost compelled to come to the Pacific slope. There is every inducement to bring them here. We have advantages of climate, timber and water that no other region can offer. Our other advantages are equal to any other spot on earth. By reasonable efforts we can do all and more than has been done in the southern counties. I feel confident that the near future will give us an unexampled growth and development in which all the northern counties will participate. We shall see the warm belt of the foothills of both the Sierra Nevada and Coast Ranges covered with an industrious and prosperous people, engaged in every branch of human industry.

The great land holdings of the valleys will represent the part of the hero of the story, and in nothing is Miss Davies more pathetic and perous people, engaged in every branch of human industry.

The great land holdings of the valleys will be divided up and every eighty acres will have its owner. Our towns will start into renewed life and energy. Many of them will become cities. New towns will be built as they have been in the southern part of the State. In order to do this the work will have to be continued. The financial requirements to do this, under present arrangements, are inconsiderable. In addition to the present income, $100 per month will maintain the office and insure the most ample advertising.

N. D. RIDEOUT, President.

ments by which we have secured a page in a monthly publication at Chicago, devoted to advertising the resources of the West. It has a circulation of 400,000 copies per month and read by all classes. With these ample facilities of widely advertising our resources and advantages for home seekers, we shall be able to attract our full share of the large number constantly coming west.

In this department of advertising the work done has not been less important than in the other departments. When we first organized it was expected that the cost of advertising our resources would be from $100 to $150 per month. By the arrangements now made the work of advertising is a source of revenue, instead of expense, and the facilities are incomparably greater.

The Nevada county exhibit includes large blocks of gold and silver-bearing quartz, the various forms of the chlorine process for the reduction of ores, a facsimile of the great gold bar, resulting from a thirty days' run of the North Bloomfield Company. It weighed 511½ pounds, and was valued at $114,000. Seven pieces of granite finished; two are fine specimens of black granite. There is shown also Channell's According to the control of the co nell's Nevada Concentrator. It is a model, and operated by a small engine. There is shown also Mr. Channell's invention of a nining cage, with a double safety clutch The exhibit is under the superintendence of J. D. Channell, and is on the main floor.

The Neumann silk exhibit and reeling at the filature in the upper south wing, east side, should be examined. It is made by Joseph Neumann, the pioneer silk-grower of California. He exhibits a host of cases of cocoons, moths, skein silk, etc., representing the industry from 1865 to date. There is shown, also, silk fabrics in variety made from California-grown silk. He shows, also, an immense United States flag, 20x36 feet, made of California-grown silk, the first ever made of American silk. A duplicate of it is on deposit in the Smith-sonian Institution, by resolution of the United States Senate, passed in 1854. He shows the premiums granted at the Vienna and Philadelphia international exhibitions. He shows silk woven in 1868 in the pa-vition at the State Fairthat year. He shows the first piece of black silk ever made in California (1866). He shows a great quantity of cocoons raised in 1877 by Joseph Neumann and family. In short, his exhibition is too large and varied to be here described. It is invalid to be here described. It is claimed the fullest collec-tion in the United States, and, indeed, the only one that is worthy of the title of collection showing the whole history of the California production of silk. On the same floor is the silk exhibit of the California Board of Sericulture, and which we shall notice hereafter.

L. K. Hammer, Sacramento, in the south gallery wing, makes an exhibit of musical instruments in great variety, from a bas drum to a piccalo, and a concertina to casti nets. He shows, also, the Wilcox & White organs in variety. The exhibit represents one of the oldest wholesale and retail houses in the interior, and one of high character.

EDS. RECORD-UNION: The electric light at the State Fair Pavilion, which I represent, is not a Stockton light, as your reporter imagines, but is the invention of Mr. Jenney, of Fort Wayne, Ind. The company sold its first plant on this coast at Stockton about a year ago, and the State Fair Association contracted with the Stockton Company for furnishing fifty lights during the fair. Owing to being short of force and some few other causes, the lights are not yet quite up to our usual standard. The Jenney system claims to be the simplest, and in some respects the best in the market. The manner in which the dynamos and lamps are constructed make them easy to repair in case of accident, and the whiteness of the light is a particular feature of the system. While acknowledging the merits of other systems, we do not admit a superjor, and so far we have been able. than any other company, and the system wor high praise from all. We are new lighting the entire Southern Exposition at Louisville, Ky, which is sufficient evidence of the merits of the Jennry light.

SPECIAL MENTION.

On the north of the rotunda is the exhibit of the Capital Pottery, George Muddox, proprietor, Sacramento. Every even ing at 8:30 he has a potter turning out products from the clay. The exhibit is that of a large industry and the very best kind of work. Muddox is one of the most experienced and skillful stoneware factors in the whole country. He makes all kinds of stoneware, filters, jugs, jars, pots, crocks, in endless variety and of superior quality, he claims, to most others. He shows full samples of his superior drain stone and roofing and floor tile and irrigating pipe his steneware is vitrified; that say, burned to a flint body and made acid proof. We tested its strength yesterday and, compared to much of the pottery of commerce, is as steel is to wood. One his inventions is a grease-trap to catch al the greasy matter flowing from the kitcher drain, and that so coats and ruins drains and cesspools. It works to a charm, is simple and a perfect success, and it is impossible for it to get out of order. Mr. Muddox, by his location at Sacramento, can ship cheaper to all the interior than any San Francisco or east establishment, and he supplies the trade at rates defying competition. He furnishes fine quality of fire

W. R. STRONG & CO. On the main floor, near the entrance to the north wing of the Exposition building stands a pyramid shaped structure ar ranged in a manner so that on each of th collection of seeds that has been placed on public exhibition for some time. This exhibit is made up of some 500 different varie ties of seeds, consisting of flowers, herbs, clov er, grass, vegetables and regular field seeds of many kinds. To those in search of omething to please the eye this display may not seem the most attractive, but to the farmer and horticulturist it is one of great significance, especially on this coast, where farming and horticulture are becoming the great leading industries. The house of W. R. Strong & Co. is located on the corner of Front and J streets, and is one of the largest ouses on the coast as well as one of the oldest, dealing in all kinds of tropical fruits. seed, nuts, vegetables, honey, etc. Visitors from the Eastern States, and those who do not live at so great a distance from us, can spend a few minutes very advantageously by visiting W. Lewis Smith was to-day sentenced to fifteen years in San Quentin for arson in the first degree. April 23d Smith fired Mariovich's saloon at Pomona. The insurance companies and citizens offered a reward for the incendiary, and Smith being hard pressed by detectives, confessed, but implicated others.

Maud Robinson, 17 years old, left her mother's house, enticed by Dan. Sheely, and went to a house of prostitution, was arrested last night and reprimanded by the Mayor. She said she wanted to lead a bad life, and her home was unpleasant. Sheely was arrested.

Chinaman Found Dead.

Placerville, September 10th.—Coroner Spencer was notified last evening that a Chinaman had been found hanging in a cabin about a quarter of a mile above Morrill's bridge, on Weaver creek. Proceeding there this morning, the jury found an old heathen named Ah Lou, who has made a living by selling pitch for several years past.
